Roy Stump urges the raising of a coastal militia. Why not raise one?

Joe Park went hunting Saturday. Plenty of bites, he says, but all from mosquitoes.

City Clerk E. H. Miles was around the city hall four hours after closing time Saturday. "I'm waiting for a ride home", he explained.

H. N. Wittenberg, service inspector of the Yellow Cab company, of Chicago, was in Port Arthur today in the interest of his company.

Just what J. L. O'Neal will get out of the prizefight will be seen in the first bout O'Neal stages here.

Chances are Bob Miller will get his race, to the field along with Roy Hustin, G. L. Whitton and others when the snowday opens up.

He's always glad to go, but just as happy to get back. That's Dick Parslow, chief of detectives, who has just returned from a hunt in Big Thicket.

It is not believed the bear population in the Big Thicket is materially reduced as a result of Mayor Pink Logan's hunting expedition there Saturday.

Based on plans of Central station nozzle pushers to go sailing on January 15, S. S. predicted a cold spell on that date two weeks ago. Today is the fifteenth.

Sparky Markham, bottle station job, filled his thymos bottle at Lavin's coffee emporium last night and then the sleepy hours of the midnight watch.

Many a Sunday fishing party thought how much nicer it would have been to attend Sunday school than push a heavy cart through the mud yesterday afternoon.

Hint to Schneidles: Sloganize and spread the difference. Slap a slogan on a postal card and mail it to Y.M.B.L. city chamber of commerce. Make it boost for Port Arthur.

Austin-Procter corner club motion to meet in their open air stadium at 6 p. m. today to observe Venus ramping the moon failed to get a second. The motion was made by City Father A. A. Poteet, it is reported.

People are again talking oil development here with the Amerada company's new deep test in Spindletop. The well has already passed 3,500 feet and if it comes in, it will mean the finding of a new strata in old Spindletop.

No wonder the Bible classes are growing. They're hiring city officials to handle their publicity. Commissioner Poteet is seeking to make the First Methodist South's Bible class bigger and better in every way by the use of printers' ink.

Have a care with kerosene stoves. Foremen called out Sunday to extinguish one that got so enthusiastic it burned on its exterior as well as its interior. The call was at Thomas boulevard and Waco avenue. No damage.

William Helton has returned to Tampico, Mexico, after a few days' visit here with friends. Mr. Helton stopped in the city a few days en route to Tampico from Nashville, Tenn., where he has been visiting with his mother, Mrs. W. M. Helton.

It's alright to live over in the north end addition as long as you stay at home, but once you get away from the front gate, watch your step. Such are the experiments of R. L. Cases, advertising expert of the suburb, who came down town to visit his sister-in-law yesterday. When he returned to Beaumont the water was so high and the streets so muddy in Sabine Pass avenue where he resided, he could not ford the thoroughfare. So he came back to Port Arthur and spent the night.

Mer Rouge Merchant Testifies in Open Court

SKIPWITH DEPUTIZED

But Sheriff Says He Didn't Issue Commission

COURTHOUSE BASTROP, La., Jan. 15.—Word that the Ku Klux Klan is going to pull the biggest stunt ever pulled off, was whistled across Morehouse parish two weeks ago. The brutal murders of Walter Daniel and Thomas Richards, witnesses testified in the open hearing here today.

J. H. Imbriet, merchant of Mer Rouge, testified in the probe of black hooded terrorists that he received this word from A. L. Fleming, formerly of Mer Rouge.

Imbriet declared Fleming warned him that when the stunt was "pulled, Imbriet, you won't say they are bluffed."

Sheriff Testifies Fred Carpenter, sheriff of Morehouse parish, who has been named as a member of the Ku Klux Klan, was called as the first witness. He testified Skipwith asked to be deputized to make arrests of bootleggers and was told "all right, but never receive an official commission."

Mr. Carpenter, there was testimony Saturday to the effect that Lon Bradlock was arrested by a band of men, brought to Bastrop and turned over to you. Is this a fact? asked Assistant Attorney General S. G. Guin.

"Yes,"

"Who turned him over to you?"

"Captain Skipwith and several others."

"Exactly who?"

Bradlock Not Jailed

I can't try to remember as many as I can. There was Benton Pratt and Mr. McIntosh and one of the Eldridge boys—I am not so positive about that, though—and one of the Cox boys, Sam or Frank, and Captain Skipwith.

"No, I gave him a room at my house that night."

Carpenter declared he had no knowledge of any warrants having been issued for Bradlock's arrest and (Continued From Page 1)

ABSOLVES KLAN IN 'BRAND' CASE

Woman Victim of Hot Iron, Makes Statement

TILLAMOOK, Ore., Jan. 15.—Mrs. Nevada Standish, branded on the breast with a white hot cross by two hooded and masked men, today absolved the Ku Klux Klan from any blame in the torture.

The branding occurred on the night of Jan. 10, 1922, but the victim kept the attack a secret for weeks.

"I know who members of the gang were," she said. "The men were hooded and shot at, the disguise was a makeshift affair."

The scar, small but still outlined by the white of the heated skin, is visible except when Mrs. Standish wears a high necked gown.

Texas Loses Red River Boundary Suit

RED'S BOUNDARY IS HIGH WATER

State Loses Claim to Big Oil Lands

OPINION REVERSED

Court Rules "Cut Bank" Is South Bank

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In another important decision on the famous Oklahoma-Texas oil and boundary dispute, the supreme court held today that the southern bank of the Red river between the two states is at the point the river reaches when it is at high but not flood stage. The court previously ruled the south bank as the boundary between the two states.

Texas Loses Oil Lands The south bank, the court held, is not at the low water mark as Texas contended, nor the foot hills of the south, as the federal government contended.

As a result of the decision Texas loses her claim to valuable oil lands located in what is held to be the bed of the river.

Opinion Technical

The cut bank of the river, where it wishes without overflowing, constitutes the south bank and the boundary between Oklahoma and Texas, said Justice Van Devanter, delivering the opinion.

The opinion is highly technical and probably will have to be studied by experts before its exact effect on numerous claims is known.

Justice Van Devanter announced a commission of three men would be appointed to work out application of the court's decision which will become effective in 30 days.

U. S. Takes Oil Land

By action of the court, the federal government is given full interest in the 48 oil properties in the disputed territory. The court held in its former opinion that the government owns the river bed between the Oklahoma state bank and the south, or Texas bank.

Practically all of Texas claims to the disputed territory over much of which the state has for years exercised jurisdiction, were rejected, including the claim to Barkburn Island.

Associate Justice McReynolds dissented declaring the low water mark, along the south bank is the true bank of the river and true boundary line.

TWO STRUCK BY AUTO NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

Painful but not serious injuries were sustained by little Helen Derrough, four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Derrough, 1200 North street, when she was struck by an automobile about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in front of her home. The accident was reported to the police by J. W. Whetley, 445 Beaumont avenue, occupant of the automobile which struck the child.

Whetley declared he offered to take the little girl to the hospital, but when her injuries were found not serious, she was removed to her home, city throughout tomorrow.

RIBOT, FRENCH WAR PREMIER DIES AT 81

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Alexander Ribot, wartime premier of France during the stormy days from March to September, 1917, died here suddenly at the age of 81.

Ribot married Miss Mary Burch of Chicago. He leaves one son, Dr. A. E. Ribot.

ARREST OF NAOMI BOUCHER HELD BY OFFICER

Ranger Chief Ignores Writ of Habeas Corpus

By United Press

WACO, Texas, Jan. 15.—Arrest of Ranger Captain R. D. Shumate on contempt charges was expected today as the next of the sensational developments in the "Lover's Leap" murder mystery, in which Grady Skipworth 19, was killed.

Arrest Ordered

Shumate's arrest was ordered by District Judge J. P. Alexander here following his alleged writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Alexander's clerk for the release of Naomi Boucher, Skipworth's companion the night of the murder. And her two brothers, Horace and Bernard Boucher, who were taken into custody by rangers in connection with the tragedy.

Skipworth was attacked and slain and his body thrown over the 200-foot embankment that is known as "Lover's Leap" on the night of November 20. His assailant was a negro, according to Miss Boucher, who testified at a preliminary hearing that she was also attacked by the black.

Spirited to Dallas

Ivory Clay, negro, was later arrested and was identified by the girl, the man, Grady Skipworth. He is held here without bond.

The arrest of the Bouchers came without warning. They were immediately spirited to Dallas by state rangers, who refused to reveal what connection they believed the two had with the murder.

Two Arrested, Dope and Needle found in Raid

A carful of "dope," hypodermic needle and a medicine dropper were seized by Detective Roy Covard and E. Sanitieri when they raided a place in the 400 block on Houston avenue about 8:15 Sunday night. Two men were arrested in connection with the seizure. They are being held for violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act, police said today.

NEGRO KILLED

Shot in Row Over Debt: No Complaint Filed

Up until this afternoon no complaints had been filed against Tom Coleman, negro, arrested by the police Sunday in connection with the fatal shooting of Wallace Alexander, 25, negro laborer, at 7:15 a. m. Sunday on West Seventh street, police said.

The negroes had an argument about a debt, police declare, and then started shooting at each other. One shot took effect in Alexander, constructing his abdomen and severing an artery. He died in about 15 minutes, after he was taken to Alamo Gates hospital.

Coleman turned over a .45 calibre pistol to the police, and a .38 revolver was found on Alexander, police reported today. Pending the completion of funeral arrangements, Alexander's body is at Grammer's undertaking establishment.

INLETS FOR STORM SEWERS UNDER WAY

Storm sewers being installed in connection with the city's paving will be carrying off water within the next week or ten days, according to C. Erwin, city engineer. Inlets for the sewers are being constructed rapidly, and with continued good weather, the remaining lines will be laid within a few days, he said.

Not Act of Labor Union

Monday Henry Maitre, financial secretary of the trade and labor council, issued a statement to The News which said that Mr. Allen took this action on his own initiative. It was not an act of the labor union as Mr. Allen is not a member of the trade and labor council, Mr. Maitre explained.

Meanwhile, Francisco Ustrada, the Mexican arrested, is still engaged in the meshes of the law. He speaks pretty good Spanish, but says this fangled stuff about arresting a man for trying to do an honest day's work is all Greek to him.

Somebody told him that it would be "all over" Monday morning. Whereupon he found his way to city court and took a seat in an isolated corner of the room. He sat through the proceedings and when everybody got up to leave the place, he asked "it was all over." Then it was explained to him that his name had been called and it was thought he had not appeared.

So Francisco Ustrada is still puzzled over laws and labor and the Sabbath day. His case, if it is understood, will be heard later.

COURTS CLOGGED WITH PRO CASES

Fourth Year Finds Twice As Many, Says Bureau

562,000 PENDING

20 Distilleries and 20 Warehouses Seized

(Copyright 1923 by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The dawn tomorrow of the fourth year of constitutional prohibition will find the federal courts clogged with almost twice as many prohibition cases as were on the dockets a year ago.

This was shown today by a comprehensive summary of enforcement work during the third year of national prohibition which was prepared for the United Press by the prohibition bureau.

As the third day year ends tonight a grand total of 562,000 prohibition cases are pending in the federal courts as compared with 38,871 on January 1, 1922. In addition there are many more thousands of cases in state and municipal courts.

The large increase was partly accounted for by 47,132 new cases which were filed during the year, while the congestion in the courts resulted in a disposal of only 17,412 suits. Officials claimed that the increase also was caused by a stricter enforcement of the law.

Summarizing its work during the last year, the prohibition bureau reported as follows: "Fines received from convicted violators, $3,172,230.17. $4,904,271 'Collected.' Including fines, forfeitures and collections, the prohibition bureau turned into the federal treasury a total of $4,904,271.95—more than half the cost of the federal enforcement organization. Number of convictions obtained in federal courts, 21,640. Indictments found or informations filed, 35,409.

Twenty distilleries and twenty distillery warehouses have been seized for violations of the Volstead act. Indictments have been returned against all of them, and to date eleven distillers have been convicted.

237 Breweries Seized A total of 237 breweries fell into the toils of the federal authorities for violations during the year and 70 were placed under seizure with armed guards stationed on their premises. Convictions have been secured in forty cases while 79 indictments have been returned. Fines paid by brewers during the year totaled $155,930.

The new pulp of the bureau of invoking the nuisance provisions of the Volstead act under which premises on which persistent violations occur may be closed for one year already has achieved results.

Shumate Intimates Hidden Secret

By United Press

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 15.—Miss Naomi Boucher, 16 year old companion of Grady Skipworth, 19, on the night he was slain at "Lover's Leap" near Waco, is being cared for in a private home here Ranger Captain R. D. Shumate, who brought her here from Waco, declared in an interview. Her brothers, Horace and Bernard, are held in jail in another city, Shumate said.

Miss Boucher is being given every consideration where she is being held, the ranger captain declared. She is in the best of hands, he said.

To Submit to Arrest

Shumate said that he expected to leave for Waco today and submit to arrest on charges of contempt of court.

"Miss Boucher, as far as it is known, is the last person to have been with Grady Skipworth while he was alive," said Shumate.

"Brooding Over Secret"

"She appears to be brooding over some horrible secret," the captain said, "that robs her of her peace of mind and causes her to spend her nights in sleeplessness and her days in a turmoil of mental torment."

Miss Boucher is the only person on whom officers had been unable to learn the number in which Skipworth met his death. We believe we should be given a little more time to complete our investigation."

YMBL to Start Budget Drive Wednesday

Approximately $25,000 will be needed this year. This will be the aim of the Y.M.B.L. organization to be selected Tuesday night and which will manage the raising of the budget this year.

A systematic method of arriving at an equalization per member assessments is being arrived at by General Manager Roy Stump, who today was busy with the city tax rolls.

In many cases the assessment is too high and in other cases it is too low. The plan is to arrive at a just basis to use as a unit and work from it.

We're in fine shape. Tomorrow looks good to us. All we have to do is to move ahead," is the manner in which one business man expressed the condition this morning.

The answer, he said, is the full subscription of Port Arthur's chamber of commerce and shipping bodies.

ALLIED FLEET RACE TO MEMEL TO AID FRANCE

War in Near East May Add to Turmoil

By United Press

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The German naval commandant in Berlin has prohibited French operations from supplying the French with coal or coke even if paid for, and demands retaliation, by France is expected according to dispatches received here today.

The French are advancing in the Ruhr along a 30 mile front, demolishing their railways. It was indicated in dispatches from Essen today.

Dispatches from Bochum add a French division was marching on Dortmund and that the Moselle, Wubrich, Neirgung, Vohort and Langeberg have been occupied.

New conflicts of arms, aftermath of the world war, broke out in Europe today. Lithuanians and French fought in the streets of Memel and Hungarian troops were reported mobilizing on the Rumanian border.

French troops are making a desperate attempt to hold Memel while allied warships are racing to the rescue. The attackers, seizing upon the Ruhr situation to handicap the allies in defending the Prussian border city, drove the French troops back from trenches outside the city.

Rumania Alarmed

The Rumanian minister in Paris disclosed that "war clouds" again are lowering over the Balkans, in a report that hands of Hungarian troops have already entered his country.

In the Ruhr, French troops moved forward to occupy additional territory, including Bochum. A dispatch from Berlin said that the advance guard of the French have entered that city, the "capital" of the great industrial interests of Tygo Stines.

War in the near east may be added to the turmoil, if the Lausanne conference fails.

Greece is reported moving troops to Thracian.

RUSSIA, THE FORSAKEN.

Soviet Russia has the nerve of the devil. Its war minister has invited Marshal Joffre of France to go to Russia and assume command of the army. All this recalls the sad story of Russia in the early days of the world war, when 3,000,000 of her sons died in battle to save France from the talons of the black eagles, 6,000,000 were maimed or blinded and the Russian treasury was depleted to its last dollar.

They say that Lenin is at death's door, and that the mighty genius of the new Russia has not a chance and that when his soul leaves its earthly clod, a new leader will take his place and another new Russia will be born.

There are 170,000,000 Slavs that can neither be crushed nor conquered and some day Russia will be one of the mighty nations of the earth.

Capitalism will be the successor of communism and the Russian republic of the future may float over all the territory from the Siberian border to the Chinese sea.

AMONG THE FLYS.

William Madden Fly ran as an advocate of a new constitution and A. T. Wertz ran as an avowed opponent of a new constitution. Fly was swatted. Wertz was elected to the seat in the state senate. There is another Fly. This Fly is chief justice of the fourth court of Civil Appeals. This is the way this Fly buzzed at a recent banquet:

"The making of a new constitution will not make law abiding citizens. That has to be done in the training of the children in the beginning. No law should be held as a sacred thing for it is only a man-made thing and as such any man has a perfect right to criticize it and advocate its repeal. Still, while it is on the statute book, it should be observed. The mockery and disregard of laws is the dangerous thing."

As the constitution is man-made, then its critics have a right to condemn it.

RUSSIAN REDS.

Russian Reds started an anti-religious drive on the eve of the Russian Christmas. Millions of anti-religious pamphlets were distributed. A famous American churchman is responsible for the following:

"When religion goes, only one thing can follow logically—the bayonet." It will occur to the reader of History that the bayonet came during the World War without the passing of religion. All the pulpits prayed and then cheered for their own flag and their own war-jrior.

It has been this way from the beginning. It may continue to this way until the end of time. Throughout the ages, human nature has been much the same and under this thin veneer of civilization, man has much of the savage left in him.

He may not be primitive, but he is saturated with prejudice when his passions have been aroused.

A NEW COMMANDMENT.

This is the eleventh commandment made by man for his own protection.

"Thou shalt not be caught."

This is the twelfth, which evolved from the mental workshop of a Texas lawmaker but he will not ask that it be made a statute law.

Love thy neighbor as thyself, but let his wife alone.

Representative Stroder of Navarro County is not its author or inventor. He has 118 points of legislation all his own.

Woodrow Wilson had fourteen but the Lord who made the gospel commandments hesitated and then quit after he had made ten.

LOVE AND LIBERTY AND LAW.

A San Antonio newspaper says that the world needs justice and not mercy. When he walked in the footprints of men, the lowly Nazarene declared for both justice and mercy and charity. He walked with publicans and sinners. He never passed a statutory law. He advocated love and liberty and law. He was the first apostle of universal justice and the mob crucified him. Incidentally speaking, the mob hasn't changed in 2,000 years.

WHERE IT HAPPENED

Three bandits in Kansas looted a bank, kidnapped three men, and eluded a posse of 200 armed pursuers. Kansas is not a Mexican state. Kansas is one of the American sisterhood. There are no bank robbers in Mexico. Down there the publicity agents of alien philanthropists say that the Mexicans are ignorant and superstitious and incapable of self government. This may be one of the reasons why a native never robs a bank, murders unarmed miners, breaks all the bones in the body of a victim, and then selects the nearest lake as the resting place for the unfortunate. Poor old deluded, superstitious, illiterate Mexico.

MEXICO FOR THE MEXICANS.

Approximately 15,000 Mexican nationals are in San Antonio have registered at the Mexican Consulate. There is a census being taken of all Mexicans residing in foreign countries. This does not cover the number of native-born Mexicans who are called Mexicans and who are part and parcel of the population of San Antonio. There are thousands of so-called Mexicans in Texas whose forefathers trod the Texas before Christopher Columbus discovered America. Regardless of this fact, they are called Mexicans by residents of Texas. There are thousands of such flags in other countries.

MEBSE THIS WILL ONLY MAKE THE DOG MAD

THE MISTAKES OF THE KAISER

By RENE VIVIANI

Premier of France When the War Broke Out
 Copyright, 1922, by M'CLURE NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE.
 GERMAN EFFORTS AT VINDICATION

The wording of the German declaration of war has been given. Alleging as pretext that French violators had flown over Nuremberg, war was declared. Belgium ripped open, France invaded, the world hurried back. And, in order to preserve moral continuity in her sinister history, it was again by means of a falsification that official Germany sent millions of men to their death.

The burden of this German device, first, upon the Kaiser, next upon the German people, and finally upon the world, is to make Herr von Jagow, who had the audacity to transmit over his signature to the entire world that final outrageous crime against truth. The world knows how false that legend about French aviators was: it knows that the false allegation was officially admitted as such by Germany, that witnesses on the spot protested against it, that no aviators flew over Nuremberg.

Hence it was urgently necessary that a more solid foundation be found for the declaration of war, so the necessary yarn about French raids into German territory was invented. Just as the other one had also been invented, Herr von Schuen, having returned to Germany, sought to maintain that he had discussed the declaration of war with me, and that, in the course of our talk, he had been warned by me that the declaration might have affected the telegraph wires and made the words of the telegram which he brought unintelligible to him. But he held no conversation with me except to make a complaint, at the outset of our meeting, and then he began to read. But it behooved him to create the belief that we had been warned by him of the inaccuracy of the telegram. No man could have done it at my office, before me? I had sent to him the previous evening a note accompanying a protest detailing the number of raids which had been made into French territory by German troops. He knew well that General Puroet had been killed ten kilometers from the frontier on French soil, and Herr von Jagow likewise knew it, since the French officer, Major, was justly killed in reprisal, as were all the rest of the squad except one man alone, who got back to Germany and reported on the occurrence.

Here is one instance among a number: the original German version of an incident accused French soldiers of having made a raid to Reppie. The next day this claim was omitted in a second version, since some Germans were made prisoners on this occasion and their being in our hands was evidence of their crime and of our justified defense.

Another story was to the effect that there had been a French raid upon Montreux-les-Vaux, and this story was adhered to, since the Germans concerned managed to escape and witnesses were lacking.

Another lie: on August 3, the Minister of the Interior at Berlin declared in all seriousness that automobiles with women passengers, carrying millions in money, were passing through Germany in the direction of Russia. Press indignation regarding this was stimulated even until after the declaration of war, and, on August 6th, in an official note, he said Minister denied the story and continued to allude only to "so-called enemy autos." But, by this time, imagination carried to the extremes of delirium, had done its work.

Two More Absurd Charges.

Finally, here are two actual proofs of the absurdity of the accusations made by the Germans:

On August 3, in the morning, as has been already stated in this chapter, Mr. Cambon caused to be delivered to Herr von Jagow the note addressed by me two days before at 9:50 in the evening, to Herr von Schuen in which I pointed out the numerous German raids across our frontiers. At eleven in the morning Herr von Jagow said that he had not had the time to read it. Then, at the same hour, Herr von Jagow went to Mr. Cambon and returned, as follows, of the alleged raids by the French: "On Monday morning, August 3, 1914, Herr von Jagow came to me. He came to complain of the acts of aggression which he alleged had been committed in Germany at Nuremberg and Coblenz, particularly by French airmen, who, according to him, had come from Belgium." (Yellow Book No. 158). Now, at that time, he said not a word about raids by land! And at two o'clock on that same day he was to draw up the declaration of war!

So one can understand at once why he made no mention of these aggressions, and why, counting upon the empty yarn about the airplanes and upon the winning of a prompt and easy victory, he confined himself to writing what he did. Who can believe that, at that most fateful moment, Herr von Jagow could have been unaware of what was alleged afterwards, when even some Germans could by no means accept the earlier lie?

But there is still more: when I drew up the declaration of war he knew that the report was false, yet he made it one of the bases. Here is the proof thereof:

The Cologne Gazette in its morning edition of August 3, published this: "The Bavarian Minister of War, Count von Hofmann, in the course of the news that the aeroplanes of the enemy were seen over the lines of Nuremberg and the Eiffel, throwing bombs on the railway." (Quoted by the paper "Die Lie" of August 3, page 181.) The same writer observes that, on that very day, the King of Bavaria made a proclamation to his people, did not mention this bomb story. Now, Herr von Jagow could not have been unaware that the story was a fabrication when he wrote the declaration of war that same day at two in the afternoon.

But—the declaration of war had to be launched, even in the absence of grievances on which to base it. Moreover, the war, the drama, the shaking of the entire world would swallow up everything, even the memory of the crime to which victory would grant pardon. The man committed on all this. But details, embittered from Germany, gradually undermined the fabrication; it became necessary to back it up with another lie, without entirely destroying the original one officially. Thereafter tales were told about things alleged to have happened far from towns, far from reliable witnesses, or vague parts of the frontier.

The mountain road of the Vosges, "Occupied by German points." What road? What points? Nobody knew.

That is how, in 1914, the Minister of Foreign Affairs of a great nation trumped up a declaration of war, coined it like a piece of counterfeit money and found means, in the midst of such heavy responsibilities, to garner for himself most of the stigma affixed by history.

Before that, even before the war he had experienced the contempt of Italy. Having exhausted his efforts to align that noble nation, by dint of bargaining, with the Central Empires, that international broker brought the German General Staff to bear upon Rome. The latter brought up the question of the casus federis, which supposedly obliged Italy to side with the Central Empires by the terms of her treaty with them. Italy looked into the matter and replied that everything that was happening, if true, was due to earlier provocation by Austria. And since Germany persisted, declaring that Italy might at least line up on her side, she was given to understand that, in the eyes of the Italian people, Austria and Germany were birds of a feather.

Oh, what a malign fate pursued those inefficient ministers that weak Chancellor and that blind Emperor, withholding from them the clear vision of the Latin mind!

What happened to Belgium is known—the disgraceful ultimatum of August 2, the magnificent answer of the weakest nation to the heaviest blow, its resistance for the sake of the right, the respect of Belgium, neutrality shown by France and England, "No peace without a law," said Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg.

It will be to be told that on the next day, there was an interview between him and the British Ambassador, and the world will not forget the immortal retort by which the latter called back the Chancellor to a sense of honor:

"So are our two nations to fight on account of a scrap of paper?"

"I would respectfully call to your attention that England has a different conception of honor."

Why did not Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg take France into England to task on that day for the alleged plans for violating Belgian neutrality which he, of course, invented when victory seemed to him less of a foregone conclusion?

As for France, she stood erect, calm and resolute, having done all that was possible to avoid war, and of facing the worst peril.

Funeral of Jaures, Expressed National Grief.

I left the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at 7:15, conferred with M. Poincaré, and returned to my residence, having, throughout my long periods of tenure of governmental office, preferred it to official receptions, to attend day that, to be followed by others—days which fitted, without a break for rest, into nights of unending labor. It now developed upon me to draw up the official ministerial declaration concerning the negotiations which I had concluded, proclaiming about the rights of France, her innocence and her courage, applying to those before the nations and before history, denouncing the crime of Germany and her recalcitrance, and before the opening of the struggle, brand her with the stigma which blood has been unable to wash away. In addition, I had to prepare a speech for delivery at the tomb of Jaures, a victim of the madness aroused during terrible days like those, since that great orator was still lying in his noble abode and since, around the fallen Colosseum, opinions, rumors and vehement expressions of grief were beginning to arise. All these things had to be done.

On the evening before the battle and before the funeral ceremony, I sat in my quiet study, where my severe rows of law books surrounded me as if seeking to give me their protection at that awful hour against the imminent danger of violence.

In the morning, the funeral of Jaures became an expression of national grief, and if Germany—as hinted at in the Memoirs—had reckoned upon the death of Jaures for depression of the French state of mind, she had deceived herself.

In the afternoon, after the Council of Ministers, when, at 2 o'clock, the telephone bell rang, M. Paul Cambon, our ambassador at London, informed me that the British government had authorized him to express in stronger terms than before her friendly attitude toward France; I immediately added to the declaration I was preparing some sentences bearing on the agreement of 1912.

When arrived, the members of the Chamber, all standing, all magnificent in their bearing, according to me, the French Premier, the unforgettable token of the enthusiasm and emotion which they felt. It was not for me, but for glorious France, about to enter the arena, that this storm of acclamation arose. The fact that, during those terrible days, I bore aloft without wavering will be to me always the proudest badge of honor of my whole life.

The grave and virile message of the president of the French republic, followed by the declaration in which I set forth the position of France, met with unanimous approval both in the Chamber and the Senate: "A free and strong nation, which fights for an ideal rooted in the centuries" and justifies in its entirety, to protect its existence; a democracy which has been able to keep its military strength within the bounds of discipline and did not fear, a year ago, to increase the burden of that strength in order to counter the arming of neighbors; a nation in arms fighting for its very life and for the independence of Europe—these are what we have the honor to showing the witnesses of this tremendous struggle, for which preparations have been making for days, and the greatest calm and in the most methodical manner. We are without reproach. We shall show ourselves to be without fear."

French Chamber Votes the War Laws

Then, came the voting, by the two sections of the French Parliament, of the war laws. Then the work of the Chamber was over. Our eyes sought each others, also our hands, because, without our realizing it, our hearts had gone out to each other, and the arms of the older men caught up in fraternal embrace the younger men, whose faces were alight with manly enthusiasm. Could we part thus?

I spoke to all those men, I spoke to my whole country, to France, to France of the past which evoked, to France of the future which I invoked. It is not true that an orator creates feelings—no, he makes them burst forth because they lie already deep down in the human bosom; the orator's power consists in finding them and not being overwhelmed when they burst forth! Oh, ye, who were not present at that session of the French Chambers, never will ye know how cruelly ye were disheartened by Fate! There we stood in the presence of something more than national unity that unity begun by our kings and carried to conclusion by the French Revolution. I, then that tree, centuries old, the tender flowers of our Sacred Union blossomed.

We parted. Night fell. Usually, that time in summer, it is clear and cheerful. But this summer night struck me as a thing of terror. Yet, how comforting for all of us was that hour when France found anew her altar, her religion, her soldiers, her martyrs, her liberators. "Alone, entitled of nobility!"

Sons of our sons, that will be your title of nobility!"

The One-Man Woman

"Have You Ever Loved?"

By Ruth Agnes Espling

BEHIN THERE TODAY

KATE WARD, widow of DAN WARD, living with her father, CHAS. WARD, has a visitor, CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child, DOROTHY. Later she sends word that Dorothy is ill, but Kate, seeking to render aid, cannot find the little one at the hospital to which Alice says she was sent. Then, one evening, their dog,

MONK, leads Kate and her father to a lonely spot where they find an unconscious man. They carry him home, he recovers and gives his name as JAMES LATHAM. Latham is attracted to Kate. He invites her to dine and asks her to take her to the laundry of SING LOY, with whom Alice lives. As she steps inside, the first persons she sees are Alice and Dorothy.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Don't try to hide the child—I've seen her," Kate's voice was casual. She walked back toward Alice.

"I've known that she hasn't been at the hospital and certainly she doesn't look as if she'd ever been ill," she continued.

Alice made no reply. She looked at Kate solemnly and then at the child. Again Kate sensed, as she had the first time she saw Alice, a hint of tragedy. There was something pitiable about the girl—something more than merely the fact that she worked hard and in surrounding which might have been better, something more than the fact that she had a mother who was another month to feed beside her own and another body to clothe. It was something, Kate felt, deep within the girl, something more even than a romance which had gone away and died—such as that with Dan might have been, if indeed she had known Dan.

In spite of Alice's attempt to deceive, Kate felt nothing but pity for the girl.

"Perhaps," she began gently, "you'll tell me just what you needed the money for I can help you—even though Dorothy isn't ill?"

"Still no answer from the girl. Kate's tone was very kind. She might have been speaking to her own sister. "Should like to help you, you can trust me."

Silence. The other girl in the room went on with her ironing as if nothing were happening. They passed back and forth to the store room with their eyes straight ahead. "I haven't had many friends," Alice was looking beyond Kate and talking half to herself.

"Then let me be one—I shall try to be a real friend." Kate's tone was low and even.

The silence which followed seemed unbreakable. At length Alice spoke. "Have you ever loved anyone?" She was looking at Kate. There was a new light in her eyes—a light which gave the thin, white, little face an almost spiritual look. "Oh—I don't mean in the way people accept their relatives, or in the way some wives accept their husbands and some husbands accept their wives—I mean really cared."

Kate felt faint. It seemed the words were coming from after. This girl—this girl talking to her of love. She waited, expecting, next, to hear the name of the man she had loved so devotedly on the lips of Chinatown Alice.

"I—I have," Alice's voice had risen to a hysterical pitch. "I have and now—"

Alice was sobbing wildly. One of the girls at the ironing boards paused a moment to look toward her inquiringly. Kate stood dumbly by. Sing Loy shuffled in.

"Lal-lal-lal-lal—She work too hard. She cry—cry, had hurt her. With one slim little hand over his heart, the ornate stool near and looked at the weeping girl, pitifully, compassionately, carelessly. (To be Continued)

YOU AND I

DIVORCE

After talking it over, do you agree with Judge Dan Lindsey's despairing statement that marriage has become a failure as a social institution? He cites that in Denver last year there were 2908 marriages, 1542 divorce applications and probably as many on-the-quiet separations as divorces, which latter is heinous.

In private life, however, you encounter no such condition, though divorce is a big and growing peril. The trouble is not in marriage as an institution, but in hasty marriages and marring under false pretenses during courtship—leading to exposure later.

INVISIBLE

A peculiar machine is exhibited in America by Peter Davey of England. It's called the "oscilloscope." An electric sewing machine is run at top speed. Light rays from the oscilloscope make the fast-flying needle seem perfectly motionless. Switch the light off and the needle is seen darting up and down.

Light vibrations thus deceive the eye. Makes you wonder about the ether, and "this" amount us that are invisible because our five senses are not sensitive to the vibrations. The sixth sense (psychic power) may be the ability to "feel" these vibrations.

MARRIED

When you're dead, you're dead for a long time. So with marriage. The average successful marriage lasts about 13 years. Divorce is a thing of a day, and the divorced usually remember.

Apply that line of reasoning to Judge Lindsey's comment that Denver last year had 2908 marriages and 1542 divorce applications. This was a gain of 1496 permanent marriages during the year.

To give divorce the benefit of the doubt, suppose all applications were granted, which they were not, many were reconciled. Even if all it had been granted, the year's net outcome would have been 1542 days of divorce against 44,000 years of marriage. The law of averages makes marriage lead divorce, as an active institution, by an overwhelming majority.

THURSDAY
HATS make women beautiful. This extraordinary announcement comes from Europe where the millinery of Paris and Vienna is said to be simply marvelous. There each and every hat is a "creation". Millinery shops at little places where seldom more than a dozen or two hats are on display. There are no long counters of hats for women to try on. One is a portrait of one's self. One is a long, narrow, three-sided mirror, while different materials and ornaments are selected which bring out one's coloring and moods. And that is as it should be.

A beautiful hat is one of the most important factors in a woman's life. Hats have been worn by them and homes wrecked through lack of them. And yet, we Americans are still in the infancy of the millinery art. Give an American woman a hundred dollar gown and a ten dollar hat and she feels well dressed. Give a French woman a ten dollar gown and a hundred dollar hat and she is well dressed. Her gown may be a thing fashioned by herself but her hat comes from the hands of an artist.

The close fitting hat is by far the most popular with the Parisians just now, suede and felt being generally used for them. The most successful shape for the suede hat has a cloth crown, which fits the head closely, with a brim about an inch wide, with no brim whatever in back, giving a "poke" effect. Usually there is a cascade or pan-pom of feathers or ribbon at the side front which falls over the shoulder. Poke effects are gaining in popularity day by day. Sometimes the front brim is exaggerated in length and the turned-up back is again making an appearance. This is due to the revival of the old-fashioned gowns.

Soft hats and dretypes are favoring pastel colorings such as orchid, almond green and soft wood shades. Of the brighter colors, coral is the strongest seller and it is often worn with black. Parisians are particularly fond of using these two shades together. Several white felts are trimmed with white waxed gardenias. Changeable taffetas of the turban shape are among the early spring models. Hand-painted divergences in batik effects are also smart.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!
Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole. Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frostbitten feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia) 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

Dr. Blackstock was presented with a handsome wicker rocker as a gift from the two classes, the speech of presentation being made by George E. Carter in his usual happy style. Rev. Blackstock responded in an equally clever manner. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS PHIL FROG A PRINCE

By Olive Roberts Burton

"Welcome to Dreamland," said a silvery voice.

Nancy and Nick and Dusty Coat, the fairy sandman went to the place where Phil Frog was buried deep in the mud under Ripple Creek. No, Phil was not dead. He was just doing deep down underground so that Jack Frost couldn't nip him. "I'll just send him to Dreamland," said Dusty Coat with a wink when the Twins had scraped away the mud around sleeping Phil ever so softly. "I know he'll like that."

So he sprinkled some magic out of his bag over Mr. Frog and then they all drifted quietly away again like little shadows.

When the magic dust began to work, a little trap door opened and Philip dropped through.

He was wide awake now and much astonished, for not only had he suddenly grown quite tall but he was dressed like a prince. Knee breeches, silk stockings, fine shoes with silver buckles, a velvet coat with lace ruffles, a cocked hat and a cane.

"Welcome to Dreamland!" said a silvery voice and a lovely princess in a white dress came near and took his hand.

"Thank you," answered Philip with a grand bow. "I didn't know I was expected. I came rather suddenly. I believe."

"Oh, no!" We have been expecting you for days," said the princess graciously. "Nancy and Nick and Dusty Coat sent us word that you would be here. All the servants in the palace have been getting things ready for you."

"That's very thoughtful of every body," declared Philip gratefully. "But may I ask if owls or ducks are plentiful in this country?" And he looked around uneasily. "I have to be very careful of my health."

"Have no fear," answered the princess. "We have seen to that. Come now. Sit here under this large mushroom umbrella and you shall be served with fly-soup, fried grasshoppers' legs, mosquito salad, and a fine dessert of dragon-flies."

Philip grinned a satisfied grin and licked his lips. "Dreamland must be the place I've always dreamed about," said he politely.

"The baggy was wading with its two cousins, eight and 12 years, in the street ditch at Madison and Brooklyn avenue. This is in the refinery neighborhood and the streets here were covered with two or more inches of water, following the heavy rain. As the little girl waded along the ditch with her companions, she stepped down into an open storm sewer where flood water swirled madly into a powerful whirlpool. Her companions saw her disappear and the two cousins sought to rescue the baby. The father of the little girl noted what was happening and arrived just in time to pull the two others out of the clutching force of waters.

The sewer empties into an enclosed drain ditch which goes to the Neches river, its outlet being near the Magnolia refinery."

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.—James T. Thomas, 20, was held by New Orleans police today following his arrest on charges of having passed worthless checks in Houston, Texas, Philadelphia, Denver and on a local hotel.

Goodlad Withdraws Divorce Action After Acquittal of Murder

The divorce case filed in Beaumont courts by T. A. Goodlad, formerly of this city, which was to be heard today, was postponed, following the acquittal of Goodlad for the shooting of Dr. M. S. Kahn in Houston, Sept. 26.

Goodlad pleaded the unwritten law and declared while in the witness chair that he had received threats against his life.

It is reported from Houston that a reconciliation between Goodlad and his wife, formerly Miss Thelma Sawyer of Port Arthur, will be effected because of the child.

Beaumont Tot Falls in Open Storm Sewer

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Jan. 15.—The body of Angelina Sciacchitano, who Sunday fell into a storm sewer while wading in a ditch, was recovered this morning by a gang of men working under the direction of the city engineer.

The body was clinging to trash a few feet from the outlet of the sewer, or about a mile from where the child fell into the drain. The opening at the sewer where the child was swept in is six by seven feet.

BEAUMONT, Jan. 15.—Suit is expected to be filed against the city following the washing away yesterday of four-year-old Angelina Sciacchitano, when she was wading in a ditch following a deluge late Sunday afternoon. She fell into a storm sewer manhole.

"The city should protect its people," wailed the aunt of the little girl last night. "The hole was big enough for a horse to go through. It isn't right. The city is to blame."

The mother, Mrs. Tony Sciacchitano, could not be seen. She was suffering with convulsions while the father was patrolling the Neches river. The man spent the night there on the river banks while the mother was ignorant of all that was going on. She lost consciousness when news of the tragedy was first told her.

The baby was wading with its two cousins, eight and 12 years, in the street ditch at Madison and Brooklyn avenue. 1923 Fads? They'll Be Bobbed Hair, Flappers, Long Skirts, Peon Pants, Camels-Hair Sweaters, Brogue Shoes.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—You dresses, bootlegging, politics are going to be carried away during 1923. The coming year by at least a half dozen fads. You're marked as a victim, and there's no escaping it.

At least, that is the prediction of the psychology students of the University of Southern California, who have turned their minds toward studying the annual fads in which the American people indulge.

What next year's fads will be the psychology students don't pretend to know. But here's their list of fads compiled for the deceased year of 1922:

Long skirts, camels-hair sweaters, bobbed hair, peon pants, the radio, the stocking pie and flappers to eat them, sport clothes, brogue shoes.

Fads of other years, as listed by the students, have been:

1914—Kewpies on auto radiators, shoulder bouquets, feathers on men's hats, Ford jokes, tobacco coupon collections and Panama expositions.

1915—Sport shirts, military styles, Charlie Chaplin moustaches, men's hats bows in the rear, Mary Pickford curls and Boy Scout parades.

1916—"War Extras" by newspapers, election returns, peace talk, politics, flat heeled shoes for women.

1917—Knitting, knitting bags, jazz, jazz, talking about the war.

1918—Leather coats, bobbed hair, plucked eyebrows, Bolshevik tonneau windshields, Liberty bonds, joining some sort of war drive.

1919—Talking about "how you wanted to get over there, but couldn't make it," talking about "over there," saying French girls made better wives than American girls, home brewing, the dirigible style of head-dresses, jazz tips, men's pinch-waist, split back "show the shirt" cut of clothing, wool socks, "rolling their own" by women, invention of terms "selling yourself" and "merchandising."

1920—Organdie flowers on gray

MADE FOR HOUSE WRESTLING NIGHT

Shinkus Ready to Grapple Punks in Hard Match

With plans made for a packed house, it is believed the Shinkus wrestling match here tonight will be one of the best of the season.

Promoter Will Fort is expecting a packed house for the occasion.

Shinkus, who has been in this city since last Friday, training out for the bout has been gathering a host of admirers about him during his workouts at the Elks theater. The workouts have been conducted to an open house, and Shinkus has announced upon his arrival here that he would welcome citizens to the theater who wished to learn a few tricks about wrestling.

Punks is expected to arrive here this afternoon or tomorrow, and preparations to the bout record shows him to be a popular hero of Toledo, as well as a champion of the game.

Fort has arranged seating in the theater for ring-side seats at a price of $1.50 having been on this space, while other seats at the house will sell for $1.

Shinkus has been seen in action in this section of the country before. He recently conquered "Speedy" Schaeffer of Beaumont, and clipped off the record of holding on with "Pink" Gardner, famous Schenectady exponent of the game, for two hours and fifteen minutes without a fall. He has won these things by his ability to be able to give the "bind" to his opponent, and his money, and has promised local fans that they will see a good bout Tuesday evening.

Just who will take the nuts for the prelims has not been announced by Manager Fort, although it has been indicated that a fast prelim card will be arranged.

Final Tribute Paid a "King" of the Turf

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.—Horsemen, jockeys and racing officials gathered at the Union station Thursday night to pay their respect to the body of A. Barré Dade, when it was taken to Henderson, Ky. for burial. Upon the train with the casket were floral offerings in abundance, the only symbol available to the friends of Mr. Dade, for the expression in death of a tribute to a man, who in life received more genuine tributes than is paid to the most of us up to the time we make our last start.

Mrs. Dade, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Murphy, left New Orleans with the body. Members of the family of the deceased planned to meet him at Princeton, Ky. The funeral will be held Saturday morning.

Louisiana "Tigers" Vanguish Collegians

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 15.—The Louisiana State Tigers made a clean sweep of their series with Louisiana college here by winning 2-0. Newton ("Spec") Helm, got his eye on the basket during the latter part of the contest and the Tigers went out in front never to be headed.

The late Herman Schaefer had a keen sense of humor.

While Schaefer was always regarded as one of the comedians of the ball field, few players possessed keener intellect.

In other words, Schaefer was a brainy ball player. Better than the average, mechanically, Schaefer was equally valuable because he played with his head.

To Schaefer goes the credit of bringing about the most unique play I have ever seen in the majors. It caused the rules to be changed.

Schaefer, at the time, was a member of the Washington club. The Chicago club was the opposing team, and the game was staged at Washington.

It was late in the game, Washington needed a run to tie, Milan was at third base and Schaefer on first. The Washington club used up all its reserves, and Schaefer, while the batsman was a rather weak hitter, he decided to keep him in the lineup.

On the second ball pitched Schaefer stole second base. He had hoped to draw a throw, that might enable him to make a dash for home. After Schaefer reached second, the pitcher delivered two more balls to the batsman, making the count two balls and two strikes.

On the next pitch, to the consternation of everybody and the great credit of Schaefer, he threw the slider back to first base at full speed, and the runner began to happen.

Old Timer Awarded Good Sport Trophy

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.—Captain John W. Luther, one of the "old timers" among the Southern Yacht club sailors, was awarded the "Good Sport" trophy at the annual meeting of the S. Y. C. The award is made annually to the one who displays the best sportsmanship during the season. Captain Luther has always been on hand, whether the weather be "stormy or calm" and has taken his share of setbacks with the good grace of a true sportsman. He also was a member of the S. Y. C. team that participated in the Lipton cup race at Mobile.

The award of the "cock-of-the-walk" flag was made to Captain Franz Hindemans, winner of the annual championship.

KENNEDY IS MATCHED WITH EDDIE COULON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.—Bill Kennedy and Red Workman's verbal assault on Eddie Coulon have been brought to a close. Frankie Edwards has signed the two to meet in a 15-round match at the Coliseum club, February 2.

After winning over Frank Williams, Collett and Cook, Kennedy defended a match with Coulon or Jaber White.

The two boys must put a $200 weight forfeit ten days before the battle with the Louisiana State Boxing Commission. The weight to be 122 pounds ringside.

Coulon has never lost to a young fighter. His only defeats being at the hands of fighters like Montreal, Herman White, Louch and Ryan.

COLLEGIANS IN TRAINING FOR NEXT OWL TILT

Expecting Trio of Stars to Carry Off Next Victory

Port Arthur College, according to reports this morning is already initiating plans for their game at Orange, next week against the Orange Owls.

The College five, runners-up in the recent Sunday School league, carried the Owls to a snappy defeat last Saturday night, winning over the contingent by the top-sided score of 20 to 10. It is believed that the showing made against the visitors here Saturday evening can be repeated when the Collegians and the Owls clash on the latter's own court.

Although the game at Orange will be the first for the Port Arthur club since the inception of the new season, Delhomme, Funk and Bashnell showed up in fine form in the game with the Owls, this trio being a strong set to compete against. It is believed that with these boys playing their usual roles in the second clash with the Orange lads, and with the other players in as good condition as they were Saturday night, the game will be just as exciting and the final will be as good for Port Arthur.

It is believed that the showing made against the visitors here Saturday evening can be repeated when the Collegians and the Owls clash on the latter's own court.

Although the game at Orange will be the first for the Port Arthur club since the inception of the new season, Delhomme, Funk and Bashnell showed up in fine form in the game with the Owls, this trio being a strong set to compete against. It is believed that with these boys playing their usual roles in the second clash with the Orange lads, and with the other players in as good condition as they were Saturday night, the game will be just as exciting and the final will be as good for Port Arthur.

The College five, runners-up in the recent Sunday School league, carried the Owls to a snappy defeat last Saturday night, winning over the contingent by the top-sided score of 20 to 10. FEW RAISES IN VIEW FOR POOR DIAMOND STARS

Annual Warnings of Holdouts Being Distributed

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Business wasn't so good around the major league circuits last year. The pennant winning club and several of the western teams made money, but the usual bumper crops of cash weren't general by any means.

The result is few raises to the poor ball player. The club owners will ask their athletes to suffer along on a smaller stipend until things "get better." Others, who can afford their usual payroll, may do the same thing to tell out the new union.

The usual threats of retiring to private business are being made. Jake Daubert, Cincinnati Red infielder, has officially announced himself ready to enter the coal business if he can't get $14,000 a year and George Morige, Washington pitcher, is looking for other business.

Dutch Leuther is holding out for $24,000 and Zach Wheat, Andy Dick and several others on the Brooklyn Hobbs are not content with what they have been drawing. Ebbetts probably will have a whale of a time before he gets through.

John McGraw seldom has trouble with his players. The Giants are generous and the boys are all satisfied with their places. The Yanks are the most liberal spenders in baseball, but the Yankees owners are going to reduce salaries this year. Colonel Campbell and Houston are going to take a crack that way against several of the fancy-priced players.

For once in his career Eddie Roush, the champion holdout of holdouts, says he is going to report to the Cincinnati Reds in the spring without any quarrels over finances.

Of all the holdouts last season only Dutch Leonard and Dickey Kerr made their threats good. Walter Schmidt, the Pirates catcher, was out half the season and came back without getting what he demanded.

Many threats made by holdout ball players are idle, but they give the managers pain and worry just the same.

Able Assistant

GEORGE GIBSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—Charles Griffith, owner of the Washington team, is certain that he made a ten strike when he added the veteran catcher, George Gibson, to the Nationals.

Gibson will act as an assistant to Bush, aside from having complete charge of the relieving staff. It is said that Bush intends to leave the development of the pitchers entrusted up to Gibson.

The Washington club has several promising youngsters on its pitching staff. The recruits, however, have lacked the coaching of a veteran backstop, familiar with all the tricks of the trade. In Gibson, Griffith feels that he has the man who will add much strength to the Nationals' pitching staff, because of his capable direction.

MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Sterling's recession of about two cents from its recent high while likely due to technical considerations, fitted in with European dispatches of further French seizure in the Ruhr and was used by professional operators as a basis for a short sale. The subject of stocks prominent last week. Foreign cables telling of a "French advance" to 20 mile front sounded singularly early in the war days, and the bear party made the most of the occasion by attempting to force liquidation in the general list.

But after the recessions to which the market was subjected, the bear party of correcting its international position, the receding movement was thwarted, and the market, spontaneously, the side of rising prices found itself in a position to rally. The whole movement, however, was not without speculative attention to the rail roads. Southern Railway common carried about 1/2 cent last week.

Stocks were steady at the opening of the stock market today and settled with a slight advance. The advance was due to a number of factors. The first of these was the advance in the railroads. The second was the advance in the oil stocks.
The third was the advance in the
